Install Gateway Device

Install your Gateway device within 50 feet of your horse’s stall using the two included screws and plug it in. It may take up to 1 hour for it to establish a reliable connection to the best local cellular service. The blue light indicates that it has a connection.

Install Location Beacon

The Location Beacon must be installed in your horse’s stall. Choose a spot on the back of the stall wall, as high as possible. If using the screws to install the beacon, remove it from the black mounting holder, insert the screws into the center of the holder, screw into place and then reinsert the beacon into the holder. Wrap one of the zip ties around the outside of the holder being sure to cover all three black tabs and pull it tight. Trim off the excess zip tie.

Or, you may use the 2nd zip tie to secure the beacon and holder to a stall wall, bar or stall grate, instead of using the screws. Feed the zip tie through the two slots in the back of the beacon holder, reinsert the beacon, then follow the steps above to wrap the other zip tie around the outside of the holder before installing it.

Bray Mobile

Bray Mobile is a setting on the app that allows any smart phone with the app installed to act as a Gateway to get your horse’s data to the Cloud. This feature is useful when trail riding, trailering your horse, and at shows. Ask everyone who works with your horse to install the Farm Jenny app and keep “Bray Relay” turned on to increase the data that is collected for your horse. In the app’s drop-down menu, click on “Settings” then “Bray Mobile.” Confirm that Bray Mobile is enabled as shown in the screenshot below.
